Movement based on studies

In the physiological part, Professor Fischer will explain the normal sequences of motion, supported by movement studies. The focus will be on knee and elbow function.

The latest research results will be presented, and Dr. Koch shows and explains various examples of walking patterns in dogs with joint problems.

Empowering diagnosis and therapies

After the seminar, you will know how the healthy dog runs and which parts of the musculoskeletal system are involved in which function. Based on this knowledge, you will now be able to recognize how typical clinical pictures are reflected in the movement pattern and can draw conclusions about pathogenesis, pathophysiology and possible therapies.

Sharing knowledge in perfect settings

In order to combine the best professional focus, with the opportunity to network and share knowledge, the seminar takes place at a high quality conference centre with excellent facilities.

We have the centre to ourselves, and there are both top professional teaching facilities, a delicious restaurant and good living rooms with a fireplace, bar and billiards cellar. Eickemeyer staff will make sure to create a very welcoming atmosphere.
